

ABSTRACT

An illuminated badge has a plastic transparent section having an LED illuminating the transparent section. A compartment section houses a controller circuit controlling LED illumination. A battery tray holds batteries and inserts into the compartment section from the side of the compartment section. A first magnet attaches to the compartment section, and a second magnet adheres to the first magnet allowing a user to attach the badge to clothing by inserting clothing between the first and second magnets.